

The Eagle Bryan/College Station

Published Sunday, March 22, 2009 6:05 AM

A sense of history

Re-enactors depict American soldiers in World War II as they hunker down behind fortifications known as dragon's teeth during a battle re-creation at the Museum of the American GI open house Saturday. Re-enactors portraying both Axis and Allied troops staged the battle, which featured heavy armored vehicles, explosions and educational commentary.

Eagle photo/Stuart Villanueva

Eagle photo/Stuart Villanueva

Mike Brown of Kentucky sits at the helm of a World War-II era tank while preparing for a battle re-creation at the museum.